To prevent all conflicts, foreign governments must give an opportunity to the people decide their own future through the civilize voting, not sanctions, wars, etc. We all should first think about the human rights, and then, about superiority of the different states.

In The News

Several Years Later, in 2015, A National Art Treasure of China Artist SeaHawk Wang Jumps Under Train in New York City

Artist SeaHawk Wang committed suicide. It was strange that no newspaper or magazine mentioned it. However, in 1997, before her move to the US from China for good, SeaHawk Wang, along with nine other artists, was designated one of China's 10 best artists and a national art treasure by Hong Kong's Ming Magazine.

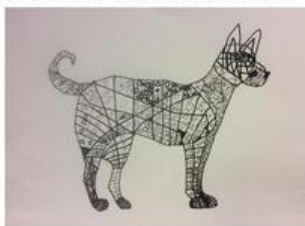

January 3, 2015, SeaHawk Wang jumped under train in New York City. Today, March 29 2015, she would be only 47 yo. She said once that the best thing about being an artist is that you have the ability to create, and it is magic. To take a blank canvas and challenge yourself is exciting. She said that she is never bored and is always fascinated with the endless possibilities she has to create.

So what is this that made a strong and full of life China-born very talented woman-artist SeaHawk Wang make such decision - decision to kill herself? In the death's notice, her website said that two years ago she "began to lose eyesight." It suppose to suggest that the losing eyesight is a reason why she did not want to live any more. However, those who know SeaHawk and her strong position in life and positive life attitude, would have doubts and would not accept this explanation. Also, today, doctors are able make miracles, and she knew it. SeaHawk came to the US because she was fascinated with America, its freedom of speech and action, liberties, and seemed endless opportunities. She was born in Harbin and grew up in Communist China. It was years full of hardship and misery. Those days trapped her mind and influenced her art. Mao Zedung died when she was 8 yo., but she would never forget the military police coming to her town to arrest neighbors.

Haiying (SeaHawk) Wang saw America as the land of happiness, freedoms, and prosperity. She came to New York City to achieve her American Dream, or at least to continue the high-profile career as a well-known Artist.

Instead, she landed in the her husband - the unknown artist-immigrant from Eastern Europe - apartment in Harlem, having troubles of exhibiting her art in well-known galleries of New York City. Her husband, who turned from unknown artist to the SeaHawk's business manager, did not move her art career forward to the same level she had in China. It seems she found herself in a "swamp"...

What did really happen to SeaHawk in America? Why she did not achieve her American Dream? Was she disappointed seeing that the US's Constitution is going through a dramatic transformation, leading this country's people to the same disastrous life that she had as a child in China? Did she begin to lose her eyesight or she just dropped her pink lenses glasses and began to see the gray reality of today's America? Or what else? And what will happen to her paintings?

Crude Justice: How I Fought Big Oil and Won, and What You Should Know About the New Environmental Attack on America by Stuart H. Smith published by BenBella in 2015. There was evidence that America's Big Oil companies were aware for decades they were pulling up radium from under the earth, poisoning yards like Karen's while dumping radioactive water in unlined pits across the South. In this book, Stuart Smith talks about his past and the environmental threats of the present. This book is both the lawyer's memoir and a story of justice and hope for Americans in the face of corporate greed and a rallying cry for the real change in the US.

"Art for Kids. The Hague", where Joy Lambert teaches her art students, offers a nurturing environment to create, explore, play, and learn about not only art, but also about personal strengths. She has developed this program with a specific long-term goal of fostering a life of appreciation for art and the art making process. This program is a concept-based, sequential curriculum integrating art history, aesthetics, criticism, and art production for all ages.

It is designed to facilitate the development of interests in learning to understand, appreciate, and create works of art. Central to this approach is a focus on content derived from a broad range of visual arts with an emphasis on what can be learned from the works of art. Students develop their communication, critical thinking, analytical, and problem-solving skills through visual expression. This program includes skill development in drawing, painting, sculpture, and craft (<http://art-for-kids.org/>).

At least 19 people were injured, four civilians were hospitalized in critical condition. Also the injury count include four firefighters and one medical technician. Who Wants Intimidate Whom and Why? Russia Is Not Planning To Start Hot War First

There is an interesting question: What do the US's soldiers doing near the Russian border in Poland? They might trying to intimidate Russians or might provoking Russians to start the hot war... What else or why all this excitement? The both tasks will be difficult to achieve. It is impossible to intimidate Russians because of some unknown to the Western world qualities of the nation's character (nothing bad), and another thing is - Russia is not going to start the hot war first. It is a country of pacifists. The paranoia or senseless fears of Russia among some older generals do not express the real situation in the world. All Russia is seeking it is the protection of its borders. Also, it is up to Russia to decide to be involved in the New World Order project or not.

"I do not think Danes fully understand the consequences of what happens if Denmark joins the U.S.-led missile defense. If this happens, Danish warships become targets for Russian nuclear missiles," Vanin was quoted as saying by the newspaper Jyllands-Posten on Saturday. Vanin meant that if NATO would attack Russia, then, Danish warships become targets for Russian nuclear missiles. Nothing else.
